Come and join Future Global Cancer Leaders UKI

Who are we?

Future Global Cancer Leaders UKI is a collaborative group open to all.

We are working under the umbrella of UK & Ireland Global Cancer Network (UKI GCN) with the aim of building a community of those interested in global health and cancer.

Our vision is to connect, learn and advocate in the field of global cancer control.

Who is this group for?

Everyone is welcome. This includes healthcare professionals of all disciplines and stages and we welcome patient advocates. You do not have to be located in the UK & Ireland to be a part of this group.

This group is particularly relevant to those early in their career but is open to all.

When are the first meetings?

We are holding two open forum meetings and would love for you to attend.

Thursday 31st August 6-7pm

Tuesday 5th September 1-2pm

Both meetings will provide further information about Future Global Cancer Leaders UKI, an opportunity to meet others and to shape the future of this group.

How do I join?

Please e-mail futurecancerleaders@gmail.com by 28th August for a link to our first meetings and further information.

What's next for Future Global Cancer Leaders UKI?

We are organising a series of international lectures and networking events to enable us to learn, share experiences and get to know each other.
